

Color Wheel:

Gathering lots of different colors of blooms into a vase or into a whole flower bed is called a multichromatic scheme.

But try coloring the flowers on the next page by choosing a few different colors from the color wheel below that are either monochromatic, analogous or complimentary and see which groups of colors that you think look beautiful when grouped together!

(There are definitions and examples below to help you.)

Monochromatic Colors

- Different shades of same color
- Are smooth, comfortable on the eyes

Analogous Colors

- Side-by-side on the color wheel
- Are considered to be relaxing color groups

Complimentary Colors

- Opposite of each other on the color wheel
- Are balanced, complementing color groups
